WANT ANOTHER GAME

Gallaudet Anxious to Play Georgetown Again.

MANAGER BROWN SAYS "NO.

Blue and Gray Nine Will Only Play Games Already Scheduled Due to the Examinations at the Law and Medical Schools - Kendall Green After District Collegiate Title.

By N. T. WORLEY.

A bomb was hurled into the local collegiate baseball arena yesterday when Manager W. S. Harris, of Gallaudet College, made an unsuccessful attempt to arrange another game with Georgetown. Manager Harris claims that the Hilltoppers are afraid to give his team another chance, and points out that the Gallaudet nine has trimmed Catholic University and that the Brooklanders have in turn defeated the Hilltoppers twice, which, he thinks, entitles the Kendall Green lads to another chance with the Blue and Gray. Never before have the Washington col lege teams been so evenly matched, and never has the situation here been so muddled as this spring. Catholic University forged to the front as a contender for the District title when, after winning a long streak of victories, it easily took the Hilltoppers into camp. Even then there were some who doubted the real class of the Brooklanders, and confidently expected to see Georgetown clean up the field with the university aggregation in the next contest. But the shoe was of the wrong foot, and Catholic University won the second game, 3 to 1, and for the first time a local college had beaten Georgetown in a series of baseball games. Gallaudet has played an annual game with Georgetown for years, and, as usual, was beaten when the game rolled around this season. When the Kendall Green tribe banished the Catholic University outfit Manager Harris at once decided to tackle the Blue and Gray and make them play or claim the District collegiate championship by default

Manager Harry Brown, of town, said yesterday that he had received a call from the manager of the Gallaudet team and had talked the matter over for an hour, but could not see any way in which a game could be arranged, as the law and medical schools are holding examinations every day this nits off Mattern and Frock to-day and week and it is impossible to play after won the second straight game from Bos- Georgetown returns from its trip North, as these two schools would be closed and In the eighth inning Frock tried the the players scattered.
